

NSFL UPDATE

January 2013

Have your say!

In 2013, it is likely there will be a provincial election. To begin a conversation about what role the labour movement should play in the coming election the Nova Scotia Federation of Labour is hosting a series of eight town hall meetings across the province for union activists, stewards and local union executives. The town halls will discuss what has happened since the last election in 2009, and what labour's priorities should be over the next year.

It's important that representatives from each local union attend and we encourage locals to send a minimum of two reps.
